

ENRICH YOUR HONORS PATHWAYS STUDIES

The Gatton College of Business and Economics provides you with a unique opportunity to focus on innovative business practices rooted in international business, social responsibility, and community through the Gatton Honors Pathway Programs. By participating in the pathways, you can reach your full potential by completing concentrated coursework while receiving an undergraduate degree in the major you declared.

“The Social Entrepreneurship Scholars pathway pushes students to tackle real-world business problems and create solutions. Because of amazing opportunities like the Global Social Innovation Challenge, we are able to partner with people around the globe to create a better world together.”

Shelby Simpkins,
Social Entrepreneurship Scholar

GLOBAL SCHOLARS PATHWAY

Take your interest in business around the world and learn how to thrive in a global workforce, increase your intercultural competence, and apply business principles in different cultures. As part of this pathway, you will complete a minor in international business and experience a semester abroad, as well as many co-curricular opportunities to enhance your global leadership potential.

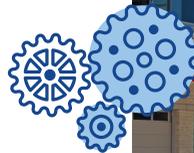

SOCIAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP SCHOLARS PATHWAY

Explore innovative business solutions that also address social, cultural, and environmental issues. This pathway will develop your entrepreneurial acumen and socially responsible leadership through a variety of experiential learning opportunities, community service, and time with local entrepreneurs and corporations.

SCHOLARS IN ENGINEERING & MANAGEMENT PATHWAY

Apply business concepts to real-world problems through this pathway, which is offered in partnership with the College of Engineering. In addition to acquiring invaluable strategic decision-making skills, you will also earn a Lean Systems certificate to reflect your knowledge of waste reduction and increased productivity in the workplace.
